

1. The first part of the report is a general statement of the purpose and scope of the study. It states that the purpose is to determine the effect of the new tax law on the income of individuals. The scope is limited to the year 1964.

2. The second part of the report is a description of the sample used in the study. It states that the sample consists of 1,000 individuals who were selected from the 1964 Census. The sample is representative of the general population of the United States.

3. The third part of the report is a description of the data collected. It states that the data were collected from the 1964 Census and from the 1964 tax returns. The data include information on income, taxes paid, and other factors that may affect income.

4. The fourth part of the report is a description of the methods used in the study. It states that the methods used were statistical analysis and comparison of the 1964 data with the 1963 data.

5. The fifth part of the report is a description of the results of the study. It states that the results show that the new tax law has had a significant effect on the income of individuals. The income of individuals in the lowest income bracket has increased, while the income of individuals in the highest income bracket has decreased.

6. The sixth part of the report is a conclusion. It states that the new tax law has had a significant effect on the income of individuals, and that the effect is in line with the purpose of the law.

10